Monthly Report

August 2023

Fund Commentary

The fund achieved a positive return of 2.08% for the month of August 2023. Since inception in June 2023, Investor class units have achieved live fund returns of +7.64%.

August is a tough month historically in financial markets. Adding to this, the Economic Data out of China in the last few weeks has been uninspiring. This has flow on effect to other countries including US and Australia. Overall, the broader market has been down. In what is typically a difficult month for financial markets, our fund has achieved a meaningful positive return. Our investors are experiencing one of the significant benefits of our fund which has low correlation to the markets and economic conditions. The asymmetric returns being achieved will help our investors navigate through different market/economic cycles and smooth returns over time.

I encourage our investors to get in touch with us to discuss further about the feature and benefit of our strategy in the current market, especially if you are worried about the risk of inflation and recession that may happen in near future. Further, if you are aware of other investors that may benefit from being invested in our fund, please provide them with our contact details.
